announced that they had bought Mrs. Brown's house and were moving there. The neighbors watched the hustle of the day and saw them carry away the trunk, which was handled with care, and which Mrs. Farmer had packed as if it held some valuable treasure. It is a shame in the C. M. Paper Mills at Glen Park, N. C., where the house he was anxious to find was in full possession of his house. He demanded to know why they were not taking it. Farmer told him that it was the place of Mrs. Brown, and so he was not allowed to do so. The house was the place of Mrs. Brown, and so he was not allowed to do so.

ments of British soldiers in a certain district the wood and turf ward for cooking purposes were sorted by the neighboring farmers. One day a donkey cart full of turf was brought in, the driver being a country lad. As a regimental band was playing he stood in front of the donkey and brushed the animal tightly by the head. None of the "smart ones" gathered round highly pleased, and the wit of the party asked why he "held his brother so tight by the head?" The reply was crushing: "I'm afraid he might enlist."

"There! That's him! Ain't he perfectly swell? Kae doesn't know him. See? Now she knows he's here somewhere. It makes my heart beat, that's why she puts her hand on U. that way. There ain't that the loveliest scene ever was? He certainly can make love perfectly grand!"

 If between the two to choose
 I ask my choice would be,
 The beauty we behold to-day,
 Or quickly does it fade away,
 Forgotten soon to be;
 Or if what is noble meets with praise
 It does not in a few short days,
 But lives eternally!

The physician's attitude toward alcohol consumption is curious. We have the best authorities for saying that in pulmonary injury of any kind or method except the regularly accepted treatment, which relies mainly upon pure air and nourishing food, the earth's history remains to be found, and it is the duty of the paleontologist to find it.

The many problems in geology await solution by the aid of what may be found at the bottom of the sea.

The vast continent which evidently surrounds the South Pole and the deep ocean trenches are waiting to be explored, and the secrets which will go far to explain the evolution of the world are hidden there, and the living forces which subvert them.

FINANCIAL NEWS

STRENGTH IN

By T. C. SHOTWELL.

NEW YORK, March 27.—Activity and length characterized the early trading in Wall street to-day. Union Pacific and siding were the leaders, with advances about a point each. Southern Pacific was only a fraction higher, as were the tobacco shares. The copper stocks also shared in the improvement, with gains of not % of a point each. Fractions were generally higher.

Specialties continued active and in demand, with Beet Sugar, Mexican Central and American Ice favorites. Each advanced about a point. Gold shares were lively active and higher, with Missouri Pacific and the Tule Grande the leaders of this group. Tule tern was also strong. Consolidated was attracted attention by its strength, and advanced 2½ points to 134, the high price it has touched since the break in January.

In London American shares were strong showed fractional gains.

On the New York Stock Exchange Consolidated was the leader of the copper group, and Miami were steady. Nipissing advanced slightly while Kerr Lake and Rose were firm. Goldfield Consolidated was fairly active around 8½.

GOVERNMENT BY THE PEOPLE

To Preserve a Government by the Consent of the Governed, the Boston American Advocates:

- FIRST, direct nominations, that the people may select such public servants as they deem worthy;
- SECOND, the recall, that the people may dismiss such public servants as have proved unworthy;
- THIRD, the initiative, that the people may compel action upon such legislation as they deem necessary;
- FOURTH, the referendum, that the people may accept or reject legislation as they deem desirable;
- FIFTH, a Corrupt Practice act that will limit election expenses to legitimate purposes and make men, and not money, the deciding force in American politics;
- SIXTH, public ownership of public utilities, that the values created by the people shall belong to the people, and a referendum upon every public franchise, that no public servant shall barter the people's property for his private gain;
- SEVENTH, the election of Senators by the people, and of Judges for short terms, that no branch of government shall feel itself too far above the people or too long removed from the people.

Americans Should Know THEIR OWN COUNTRY

"The Hundreds of Millions Spent in Europe Might Well Remain Here—Some of Them Anyhow"

Copyright, 1909, by American Journal Examiner

A prominent merchant of Boston, writing to a friend from Pasadena, Cal., says: "Southern California is certainly one of Nature's most charming winter quarters. And when this becomes more generally recognized, European travel will find a real competitor. The climate is preferable to any found in Europe, Asia or Africa, of which I have any knowledge."

It would be a good thing if Americans, generally, having money and leisure would imitate this writer's example AND TRY THE RESORTS IN THEIR OWN COUNTRY. The prosperous people of America spend hundreds of millions every year in Europe. Nobody grudges that money to the European countries when it is well spent. But certainly some of the travel, A GREAT DEAL OF IT, ought to be done here at home.

If you talk to a Frenchman of intelligence in his own country you find that HE KNOWS HIS OWN COUNTRY.

Talk to an Italian, a German, an Englishman—he would be ashamed to admit ignorance of the land to which he owes his birth and all that he has.

But talk to the ordinary prosperous American, ask him about his travels, and you hear the usual tiresome, glib talk of EUROPEAN travel and European travel ONLY.

Americans ought to be ashamed not to know this land—its greatness. A man is not a good citizen if his own country does not interest him. The American who has the time and the money to travel should be ashamed to confess that he knows half a dozen other countries better than his own.

It is a fact, as the friend who writes us says, "that the climate of Southern California in superior in winter to any climate that can be found abroad."

The scenery of the Pacific coast is most beautiful, the climate admirable, the sunshine and the flowers an inspiring delight. The man in winter time in need of warm air who exposes himself to the shivery blasts of the Promenade des Anglais at Nice, or the shivery terrace where they butcher pigeons at Monte Carlo, is a foolish person.

Americans, if you have money and time, cross this great continent, have a look at the Pacific, study the cities, the towns, the vast fields, the independent, genuine American men and women scattered in millions over this land.

Think about the wonders accomplished as you travel; note the great smokestacks, the factories, the endless miles of railway, THE MARVELOUS FUTURE ALREADY VISIBLE.

Find in your own country the climate, the warmth, the health that you need, and find above all a patriotic inspiration and determination to be a citizen worthy of a land as wonderful as this.

A Hamburger's Log

By C. B. Quincy

SEA life is great. Read 500 letters and 2500 telegrams and wrote replies. Walked twenty-eight miles around the upper deck. Noticed a large number of automobiles in chairs. They are in the way of any one needing space for exercise. After luncheon rode 270 miles on bicycle trailer; rowed fifty-seven miles in tank and put in two hours' exercise with 100-pound dumbbells. Feasting fine. After dinner wrote six editorials.

Great life this. Sea riding a little and ship beginning to roll a trifle. Walked five miles around upper deck. Number of workings in chairs. Coking fine air at sea.

Had very light luncheon. Must keep in good time for champagne drinking. Hope they won't give me public reception at Gibraltar. After 10.30 in the Governor came exact time of our arrival, in case he should want to get up a little affair for us.

Finished log for ten minutes.

Sea appears to be increasing. Rotted early.

Ship rolling considerably. Walked twice around upper deck. Passenger kindly offered me deck chair. Would have been time to return. Flashed sea air until time for luncheon. Decided not to eat any, as I wasn't taken on car.

Ship rolling more.

Went to stateroom to write away time writing message to Congress. Being writing message now decided not to eat dinner. Must keep in good training.

Ship rolling terribly. Went to grand oval and walked, but decided walking on hard deck too tiresome. Went to cabin. Let of music and saw weddings taking in their staterooms.

Ship beginning to pitch. Ship going up—up and then down. Up!

Just made stateroom. Shall lie to back until we reach Gibraltar.

Love and Life

By Ellet Fubard

THEY say that love is blind. Love, perhaps, is short-sighted, or inclined to strabismus, or sees things all out of their true proportions, magnifying pleasant little ways into serene paths, and love is not really blind. The blinding is never so tight but that it can pass.

Then, look you, the virtue you behold in the beloved you really make your own. The only kind of love that is really blind and deaf is platonic love. A platonic love hasn't the slightest idea of happen, or what is going to happen, and so there are surprises and shocks in store for it.

The other kind, with eyes a-peep, is better. I know a man who has tried both. Love is progressive. All things sleep, or become something else. And often they become something else by dying.

Behold the eternal paradox! The love that evolves into a higher form is the better kind. Nature is intent on evolution, yet of the myriad of species that cover earth, most of them are doomed to death, and of the countless rays sent out by the sun, the number that fall against this planet are infinitesimal.

Disappointed love, or love that is "just" after affects the individual for the highest good.

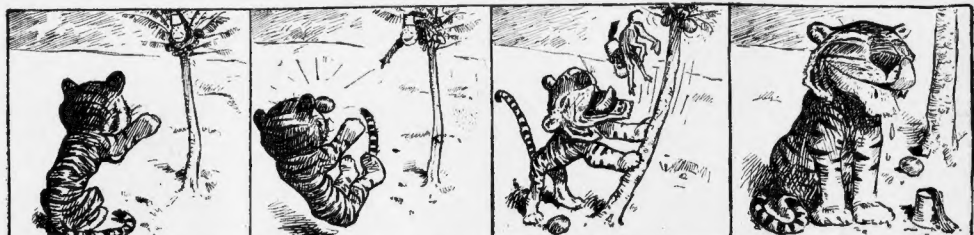

Love is for the lover, just as work is for the worker.

Love in its essence is a spiritual emotion, and for often seems to be an interchange of thought and feeling; but sometimes, directed to its object, it becomes universal, transforms itself into sympathy and, embracing a world, goes out to and blesses all mankind.

The love you give away is the only love you keep.
